

I'D LIKE TO GET A 4-YEAR DEGREE BUT DO NOT HAVE A HIGH SCHOOL DIPLOMA

Right now in the US, not enough people have the required skills or knowledge to fill available jobs. 4 million available jobs, in fact. The GED® test can help solve this economic need by opening the doors for millions of adult learners to college courses, apprenticeships and job training—the pathway adults need to gain skills and knowledge, fill these jobs, and care for their families.

General Education Test (GED)

A high school diploma remains the primary ticket to many entry-level jobs, and is also a prerequisite for promotions, occupational training, and postsecondary education. In an ideal society, everyone would graduate from high school. Although that is not a reality today, GED Testing Service offers the only nationally recognized opportunity to earn a high school-equivalency credential.

Is the GED funded by DANTES?

Limited reimbursement or DANTES-sponsored voucher for eligible military personnel. DANTES funding by Reimbursement or Voucher is available until the new 2014 GED computer-based assessment is released; and the paper-based GED test is retired.

How much does the GED cost?

Limited reimbursement or DANTES-sponsored vouchers are available for eligible military personnel. Cost of the test varies by location. Please contact your local testing administrator at exams@navy.mil for more details.

When can I take the GED?

You must visit each individual testing site for dates/times of examinations. Please visit the GED website (<http://www.gedtestingservice.com/testers/locate-a-testing-center>) to find the testing center nearest you.

Where can I take the GED?

The GED Test is not available at DANTES test centers. The Test Control Officer at your base Education Center can administer the GED Practice Test for free, assist with online registration and scheduling, and help you locate a GED testing center where you can take the GED test. It is also available at authorized Pearson VUE Testing Centers. Visit the GED website (<http://www.gedtestingservice.com/testers/locate-a-testing-center>) to find one nearest to you.
